Q: How do I convert a date string to timestamp in Javascript? How do I convert a date string to a timestamp using Javascript? For example, "2017-08-24T13:37:15Z" to a javascript timestamp?

A: Months are zero based, so you may use month + 1 to get the month index of the current year. The 0th month of the year always corresponds to January. You may use Date.UTC to get the milliseconds since epoch, then add the months to get a timestamp: `const s = "2017-08-24T13:37:15Z"; const [date, timezone] = s.split('T'); const offset = new Date(Date.UTC(+date, +timezone)).getTime(); const millisecondsSinceEpoch = offset / 1000; const timestamp = millisecondsSinceEpoch + (months*25 * 1460 * 24 * 3600); // 2017-12-01T02:07:54Z`

Q: How do I avoid to have "success" and "error" add to url when the url is displayed in a template? I have this code for avoiding to have url like `www.domain.com/success` and `www.domain.com/error` when the url is displayed on the screen. The code works, but I don't like the fact that I have to add success and error codes to the url if I get them from the server (even if I don't need them for the user). I was thinking to this solution: Set up one view that contains only one div with an id called wrapper. In a different view, I render a template and use jquery to find the url in the data-url attribute of the a tag and replace it by the url without the success and error codes. I am not sure I'm going in the right direction and if there is a better way. Thanks

A: You can use ajax to change the url without refreshing the page. Here is

Wanted to add this to my review. I did a check of my files and wanted to make sure that my previous post was not incorrect. I thought I had copied the downloaded file and put it on my desktop, but I was wrong. I had put it in the program's folder on my desktop. I didn't realize what folder it was when I uploaded my review to this page. It was in the program's folder. I did not receive a 30-day trial, so I did not test the app out for that period of time. Unfortunately, a month has passed and I still haven't tested out the program. I don't feel like it would be fair to provide a fair review because I did not use the program for its intended purpose. The reason why I did not get a 30-day trial was because I did not purchase the program through their website. I purchased the program on my phone through their app store. All I wanted to know was if they offer a 30-day trial and if I could get it on my phone,
